Woman diagnosed with endometriosis after years of being in pain

Reporter

A twenty-five-year-old Tadworth woman said she was left "feeling I was going insane" after years of misdiagnosis and battling crippling pelvic pain.

Finally diagnosed with endometriosis in 2016, Gabriella Allen has now helped launch the All-Party Parliamentary Group on Endometriosis this month.

Gabriella Allen said: "Before my diagnosis, being a 23-year-old with a partner my main concern was having fertility issues and how severe the damage would be.

"It kept me awake night after night sick with dread."

Endometriosis is when the lining of the womb grows outside the uterus, then bleeding, getting inflamed, and causing scar tissue that sticks organs together like glue and causes chronic pain.

It can only be formally diagnosed through laparoscopy (a type of key-hole surgery where a camera is inserted into the pelvis) although the severest cases are sometimes visible on ultrasound and MRI scans.

Although endometriosis is very common, affecting around one in 10 women, it takes an average of seven to 10 years for diagnosis in which time it gets progressively worse.

Gabriella said: "Being diagnosed was bittersweet for me. I had my first laparoscopy in March 2016.

"My consultant confirmed they had found a large amount of endometriosis on my left ovary and in my bowel.

"I felt a sense of clarification that I finally knew what was wrong. I also knew that this wouldn't be the end of my journey."

Whilst struggling with pain, depression, and stress, Gabriella found the Instagram of Carla Cressy, founder of charity Women With Endometriosis, whose career as a glamour model ended due to life-threatening endometriosis.

Gabriella said: "Becoming part of Women With Endometriosis has really saved me.

"It is so therapeutic for me to channel my feelings into something so positive and to help other ladies all over the world.

"I found Carla's page on Instagram and messaged to see if I could help in any way.

"Her story was so inspiring and moving I just felt so amazed by what she had created despite what she had been through."

The two women hit-off straight away and now Gabriella has been working on the nutrition pages of the website to help women alleviate some of their pain symptoms.

The new APPG, led by Carla's MP Sir David Amess, will raise awareness of the disorder and educate teenage girls in education, as the early symptoms often begin when a girl first starts her periods.

On one Instagram post Carla, whose next operation will remove her fallopian tubes and fit a stoma bag (to allow her bowel to heal post-surgery) wrote that her "one wish" is to have been diagnosed earlier.

Gabriella feels the same. "I still suffer with a severe amount of pain and sometimes when you have exhausted everything to try and subdue the pain and it

Choir comes second and helps raise thousands

The choir from St John's School in Leatherhead

Leatherhead pupils took second place in a national singing competition that raised £37,000 to support vulnerable children.

The choir from St John's School placed just behind a school from Thatcham in Berkshire in the under-18s category.

Performers sang two songs to a judging panel before choosing one to perform for an audience at a concert later that evening when the winners were announced.

All money raised will go to Barnardo's, a charity that helps vulnerable children, young people, parents and carers across the country.

Barnardo's chief executive Javed Khan said: "This was a wonderful evening of music performed by some talented young Barnardo's supporters. Congratulations to the winning schools and well done to everyone who competed.

"We are so grateful for all of the hard work they put into their rehearsals. It certainly paid off and raised an incredible amount of money too."

Chapel all set to be culture centre

By Calum Rutter

Horton Chapel is set to be transformed into an arts and culture centre for Epsom, after the council agreed to the plans.

Once part of the largest concentration of mental hospitals in the world, the Grade II listed building in Livingstone Park has been vacant for at least 20 years and is in poor condition as a result of neglect and vandalism.

Ian Reeves, chairman of Horton Chapel Arts & Heritage Society, said: "We are absolutely delighted.

"We've still got a long way to go on the journey, but this is a big step.

"Our architects worked very hard with the planning team at the council. With the Grade II listed building, we wanted to make sure that it retained its unique character."

The chapel will contain a performance space, a café and space to hire by local groups for rehearsals and teaching space, with the hope of it turning into a cultural hub for the area.

Proposals also included a permanent exhibition about the impact the hospital cluster, formed at the beginning of the twentieth century, had on the area.

The plans were the latest in a long series of proposals for the chapel, which is owned by Epsom and Ewell Borough Council.

Mr Reeves said: "An immense amount of work has gone into this so far. As a group we've done just over two years now - I wouldn't like to put a figure on the number of hours.

"It really has been a blood, sweat and tears job. We are very proud of how far we've come and pretty hopeful that we will get the doors open, in the best case, late 2019."

A decision on the final stage of Heritage Lottery funding, which would allow construction to take place, is expected in late June 2018. Planning permission was granted at a meeting on Thursday, March 22.

Views sought on political map

The political map of Reigate and Banstead is being redrawn, and the Electoral Commission is asking for the public to help. Ward boundaries are set to change, with the aim of making sure each councillor represents a similar number of people.

The council has proposed reducing the number of councillors from 51 to 45 - a move the Residents Association group is arguing against.

chairman of the commission, said: "We will consider every submission we receive from local people before we draw up draft recommendations. We will then open another phase of consultation on those proposals.

"Don't miss this chance to have your say on how your council is run."

The deadline to contribute to this stage of the consultation is April 9; to have your say visit lgbce.org.uk.

Come join in tennis fun

Free tennis coaching will be on offer at Epsom Lawn Tennis Club on Saturday, April 14.

The club is holding an open day between 11am and 3pm.

Junior and adult coaching sessions will be available, as well as refreshments.

A spokesman for the club said: "The club will be open to the whole community, and it would be great to see some people coming along to try out some tennis."

Guys and Dolls production success

Pupils from Ewell Caste School entertained Epsom Playhouse audiences with their performance of Guys and Dolls.

The cast of years six to 13 students brought the story of the "Save-A-Soul Mission" trying to recruit sinners and a turn a group of gamblers away from a life of sin.

This was the school's third annual musical production to be staged at the Playhouse, giving pupils the opportunity to work in a theatre with a professional standard of lighting, music and staging.

School principal Peter Harris said: "Since the launch of our Performing Arts Academy, music and drama have gone from strength to strength, and the fact that we now have pupils going on to specialist music conservatoires and drama schools once they complete their education at Ewell Castle School is testament to this."

The school made special mention of Chloe Haycock, Belle Shipkolye, Jack Stace and Naym Ali.

Repairing fire damaged shops

Buildings damaged by a fire in Epsom High Street are to be repaired more than 15 months on.

Caf  La Piccola, Lloyds Pharmacy and Epsom Hub were all affected by the fire on December 8, 2016.

Now plans to replace the fire-damaged parts of the buildings have been approved by Epsom and Ewell Council.

The three-storey Georgian buildings are, according to the structural report along submitted to the council, "very old and are generally in need of refurbishment".

Although the roof needs rebuilding, the main structure of the buildings appear to be okay, according to an engineer.

Firefighters said the fire began in the roof of the Hospital report released after the feedback from thousands

Reporter

Calum Rutter

South west London NHS officials have released their report into a year of conversations with the public, and referred to people's concerns over plans to merge Epsom and St Helier acute care.

The South West London Health and Care Partnership, a group of six CCGs, published "You said, we did... and are doing", looking at feedback from 5,000 local people in 2016-17.

Anxiety over the future of Epsom and St Helier hospitals appears to have informed a lot of the conversations, and the trust is mentioned several times in the report.

One section lists public concern about travel times to acute hospitals, and the feeling that the people want to keep the facilities nearby.

In the report, released on March 26, officials said: "We know that it is really important for people to be able to easily access their local hospital. We believe that we will continue to need all our hospitals though we do not think every hospital has to provide every service.

"We will not be closing any of them. There's an ongoing piece of analysis about the way acute hospitals work; the first piece we've looked at in detail is consultant staffing over six core hospital services areas, and what that has told us is that there is a challenge at Epsom and St Helier."

Commissioners in Merton, Sutton and Surrey Downs have set up an Acute Sustainability Programme, looking at how best to ensure the trust "continues to deliver high-quality, safe and sustainable acute services", hoping to work with the trust and local people.

The trust has said it will be increasingly unable to meet a proper standard of care in the long term across two hospitals due to there not being enough senior specialists. The Epsom and St Helier 2020-2030 summer-

Poisonous snake spotted on heath

An adder has been spotted on Walton Heath.

Britain's only venomous snake is now coming out of hibernation and although nobody has died from a bite for more than 40 years, walkers should be careful.

One was spotted by Ria Trundle who was walking on Millfield towards Dorking Road earlier this month. She said she has only seen about four in seven years.

Steve Langham, chairman of Surrey Amphibian and Reptile Group, a voluntary conservation organisation, offered advice for anyone stumbling across an adder (identifiable from the black diamond pattern).

Mr Langham said: "Enjoy the moment, you'll have spotted a cryptic and beautiful species which is in national decline.

"Adders are naturally shy and non-aggressive, so it will shoot off the moment it becomes aware of your presence. You are in no danger if you leave it alone.

"Of the 200ish adder bites to people per year across the UK, almost all are to men to have picked the animal up - don't do this!

"If possible, and you are in Surrey, report the sighting either via the SARG website, or on the Record Pool app.

"Adders are well known in that area, but it's still useful to have sighting records, for all reptile and amphibian species.

"If people want to learn more about herps (reptiles and amphibians) then SARG is a great place to learn and to survey these shy animals."

Killing, harming, or trading adders is not only dangerous but an offence

Millions of pounds more needed to fill holes

Reporter
Calum Rutter
calum.rutter@london.newsquest.co.uk

Surrey County Council is spending millions of pounds less every year than it would take to maintain the county's roads and paths at their current deteriorated standard.

Until 2021, the council has budgeted £15.3million a year - £4.7million less than the council's own estimates of what it would take.

The council also estimates it would take £754million to repair the roads and paths completely - £50million a year for 15 years, which is £34.7million more than the current spend.

This information was given at a full council meeting after a question from the opposition spokesman for highways, Councillor Stephen Cooksey.

Cllr Cooksey said: "The fact that Surrey's roads and

Surrey's roads would take £754million to completely repair footways are in such a dreadful condition is not news to our residents who have to drive over many potholes every day. That £754 million of spending is needed to bring them up to a decent standard is quite shocking."

He also asked cabinet member for highways, Colin Kemp, whether he had asked MPs what more could be done about it.

Cllr Kemp said the council had contacted MPs, and they are looking into what more can be done.

A Freedom of Information request recently revealed the county council paid out more than £450,000 in compensation in 2017 to drivers with damaged vehicles or injuries because of potholes.

Youngsters completed 10 challenges

Two girls have received the 'highest honour' in Girl Guiding after completing the Baden-Powell Challenge Award. Rachel and Scarlett completed 10 challenges from five topics (healthy lifestyles, global awareness, discovery, skills and relationships and celebrating diversity) and were presented awards by the Mayor of Epsom & Ewell, Councillor Liz Frost. The ceremony, on March 16, congratulated the girls for the leadership skills, independence, and self-motivation they exhibited. Rachel King, Insurance Officer at Girlguiding, said: "Thanks to the dedication and support of over 100,000 amazing volunteers, we give girls and young women a space where they can be themselves, have fun, build brilliant friendships, gain valuable life skills and discover their full potential and encourage them to be a powerful force for good." In completing the challenge, the girls learned more about the world around them and gained invaluable life skills too. During the evening, Girlguiding shared highlights from an exciting year - including summer camp and sleepovers. Other girls were presented with badges for their achievements and six new members were welcomed, with them all making their Girlguiding promise as part of the celebrations. 'The spirit of Ken'

May I respond to your comments in Editor's View of March 15.

Whilst the content of this feature is understandable, the plea for increased road safety teaching for children is a worn out expectation.

Road safety education has a low priority in many local authorities because it is costly to provide with an outcome that is often beyond the comprehension of management. However, when a child is killed or seriously injured, parents immediately criticise councils. In many cases the best action could have come from the parents. For sixteen years I was a principal road safety officer in local government. My colleagues spent much of their time in schools educating children in the safe use of the roads but half an hour spent outside any school in the morning or afternoon exposes the futility of RSO's work due to the appalling examples set by parents. To speak to a parent at this time usually provokes a vitriolic response.

The recollection of Tufty Clubs and Green Cross Codes is romantic nostalgia but it serves to highlight the decline in the provision of road safety teaching over decades. Let me take what you witnessed to another level. An eight year old boy called Ken was knocked down by a car. He was seriously injured. I crawled under the car to comfort him. In dreadful pain and crying, he asked me to tell his Mum not to worry, he was going to be alright. I promised him I would tell her, and with that assurance, he stopped crying, closed his eyes, and died. When I stood in front of a class teaching road safety I would like to think that the spirit of Ken was standing beside me.

'Tragedy' that over half do not profess to have any religion

Gordon of Croydon stated that the UK is no longer "a Christian country". Almost half the population now claim to have no religion, which in my view is a tragedy, but our National Anthem asks God to save the Sovereign, we celebrate Christian festivals with bank and public holidays, and our culture, like that of much of Western Europe, is much influenced by Christianity.

Many charitable organisations, on whom the country relies heavily, were founded and are staffed, by Christians.

The letter on which Gordon commented deplored the fact that Ofsted had criticised a school mainly for teaching the Christian faith. Ofsted is well known for promoting "muscular secularism", and I am not confident that the inspectors are well versed in the Christian faith. Possibly Gordon is not either, but it is good to know that he doesn't object to anyone having his or her religion subject to certain conditions!

I am sure that if we all truly followed Christ's way "love God and love your neighbour" the world would be a much better place. It needs to be if the planet is to survive.

Vivid imaginations can become bit of a nightmare

For the last two weeks I've been woken up in the middle night hearing about characters from the NumberJacks taking over the house, spooky goings on and creaking noises.

It must be that stage in a child's life where everything starts to become REAL! It seems as if my little ones have suddenly developed the most creative of minds when it comes to nightmares and scary dreams needing to run frantically into our bedroom, slam the door shut and, in a frenzy, tell me all about the spooky goings on in their minds (Michael most of the time sleeps through all of it I hasten to add). The stories are elaborate and quite funny but at least I end up with a cuddle or a foot in my face for the rest of the night.

I do sympathise with them as I myself remember all those times when I would see scary monster faces appear within the curtains or be too afraid to get out of bed for fear I'd be caught by one of the ghosts from Scooby Doo. I'd lay still in bed and not move hoping at some point tiredness would finally grip me and put me out of my misery.

I can laugh about it now as those times are many years behind me, but for my little ones, I need to be there to comfort them and ensure they feel safe and secure.

So, I've started doing sleepovers in their bedrooms, where I make a bed on their bedroom floor and leading up to bedtime we chat about how their feeling, read books together and laugh way too much before we all go to sleep. It's the best thing ever and not only creates a fun memory for them to have, but also means I can look forward to a good night's sleep!

Prison for man who ‘groomed’

Reporter
Calum Rutter
calum.rutter@london.newsquest.co.uk

An Epsom man has been jailed after pleading guilty to sexual activity with a child and online offences against children.

Ian Jakings, 28, met children aged between 12 and 15 in online teenage chatrooms and groomed them, trying to convince them to perform sex acts for him on camera.

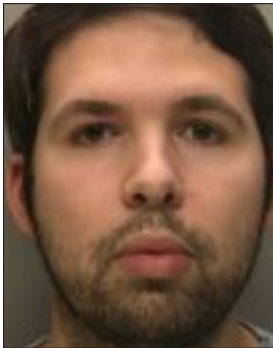

Police found evidence that he had been engaging in this sick behaviour as far back as 2011.

Surrey Police's Paedophile Online Investigation Team arrested Jakings at his home on June 21, 2017, and he was charged with seven offences and remanded in custody.

During the investigation, they found South Yorkshire Police arrested a then-21-year-old Jakings in 2011 for grooming and sexual offences against 13-year-old, but he convinced the girl not to help police, so they did not have enough evidence to charge him.

This woman assisted Surrey Police with its investigation.

Detective Constable Stephen

Ian Jakings has been sentenced to eight years and four months in prison

Bosel said: "This is a very sensitive subject for the victims and I commend how brave they were in talking to us, despite the fact some of the offences date back multiple years. They should be proud that they have enabled us to bring this man to justice and prevent him from preying on other victims."

Police have released some of the transcripts of Jakings' conversations with his victims, that show he knew full well they were underage.

In one conversation he asked a 13-year-old to be his girlfriend, then agreed to "keeping it like friends with benefits", and then told her "wish I was f u right now".

A second transcript reveals him telling a girl who said she was in year eight at school that she was "sexy", and her profile got him "so horny".

At one point he told her: "We would probably have to be discreet though, we might think age is just a number, but most other people dont lol xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx"

Jakings pleaded guilty at Guildford Crown Court of January 29 to two counts of sexual activity with a child, two counts of causing and inciting a child to engage in sexual activity, two counts of causing a child to engage in sexual activity and one count of engaging in sexual activity in front of a child.

He was sentenced to eight years and four months in prison at the same court on March 23, he will get a 10-year Sexual Harm Prevention Order and will be named on the sex offenders register for life.

Review by Sophie Jones

The Shy Horse in Chessington is a proper country pub with a menu more creative than standard gastropub fare.

I was struck by the welcoming atmosphere and friendly staff when I first walked in.

There were wooden beams in the ceiling, logs burning in an open fire and soft lighting used to great effect, especially in one cosy alcove that seated six.

It was quite busy for just 6.30pm on a weekday, a very good sign for a pub that's not in the middle of town.

First off: drinks menu. The Shy Horse specialise in British gins, with favourites like Hendrick's and Gordon's vying for attention with Adnams, Warner Edwards, Williams, and Chase.

There was also a very comprehensive wine list featuring new world and European wines paired with food from the menu.

I can't bluff knowing anything about wine; I ordered a St Peter's Without (an alcohol-free ale) and my boyfriend had a ginger and lemongrass mocktail.

The St Peter's Without, very malty, was one of the nicest ales I've ever had – alcohol free or otherwise – and I lived in a town where 'the ale trail' was the only winter entertainment.

The ginger and lemongrass was predominately pineapple-ly, with a kick.

It was a good idea to have such an interesting alcohol-free menu in a pub most people drive to; at this point I'd be happy to recommend it on the drink choices alone.

Next was the appetiser, coarse pork vegetable tart.

The carrots that came on the side seemed to be have been subtly marinated and were delicious, with a smokey-sweet flavour.

The pastry was also lovely, mine had thyme in it too which worked so well baked into the crust.

The vegetable filling in the tart was too garlicky for my taste, but still enjoyable.

I had enough room for a dessert and went for the vegan treacle and pecan tart. It was nice, a small portion designed to be something light to complement a coffee.

Like most people, I prefer more indulgent and calorific puddings, so maybe I'll try another vegan offering – coconut panna cotta – next time.

Sophie Jones was a guest of The Shy Horse, in Leatherhead Road, Chessington, on March 14.

and Madeira pâté and duck liver parfait, served with Bramley apple butter, baby gherkins and rustic bread.

My boyfriend described the pork pâté as 'earthy' and said, "It definitely tastes homemade, it's nice enough to eat without bread."

Wednesday was pie night, although there were specials and an à la carte menu offering the usual suspects often with original twists, like the stuffed mushroom, asparagus, dauphinoise potato and red wine jus with the British venison steak.

Both of us were happy to have the pie menu; my boyfriend had a steak and ale and I had the roasted

The Champions of Magic come to Richmond Theatre in April ahead of an exciting new season of entertainment...

MAGIC MOMENTS

The 5 world-class illusionists that make up the Champions of Magic return for their 2018 UK tour following sold out shows across the globe, five star rave reviews and a run in London's West End.

With over 25 million online views between them, this cast of Britain's top magicians includes award winning tricksters presenting daring grand illusions, stunning close-up magic and incredible mind reading. Their skills have been seen around the world with appearances on TV including ITV's 'The Next Great Magician', 'Good Morning Britain', 'Penn & Teller: Fool Us' and NBC's 'Access Hollywood'.

Following a 6 month international tour the show returns to the UK with brand new illusions, huge special effects and more incredible magic. Each performance features 'blink and you miss it' disappearances, impossible teleportation across the theatre, interactive tricks and the mind blowing levitation of an audience member.

Broadway World described the cast as "5 of the world's finest magicians", Wales Online called the magic "So mind-boggling that I won't even attempt to describe it" and The List added "Spectacular feats of mindreading, vanishing tricks and close-up magic will have you guessing for weeks". In the USA NBC called Champions of Magic "the most incredible show" with FOX saying "Incredible... you guys are rock stars".

The show's producer, Alex Jarrett, said "Following a huge tour across North America we're excited to bring the show home to the UK with some never before seen magic that's been in development for the last year. With every tour the team add new illusions, bigger special effects and more incredible tricks making the show more unbelievable than ever. Interest in magic has rocketed over the last few years with some brilliant TV programs, but you haven't seen magic until you've seen it live – and this team are the best in the business".

Champions of Magic, Richmond Theatre, The Green, Richmond TW9 1QJ, April 8, 3pm and 7.30pm. Visit atgtickets.com/shows/champions-of-magic/richmond-theatre

Meanwhile, Richmond Theatre has announced an exciting new season filled with brand new stage adaptations, quality drama, outstanding operas, heart-warming comedies, and exclusive special events.

Agatha Christie's Love From A Stranger is rediscovered in a brand new production by director Lucy Bailey (Gaslight, Dial M for Murder) and designer Mike Britton.

Electric with suspense and with a shocking twist, this edge-of-your-seat, rarely seen thriller by the UK's greatest crime writer is not one to miss. Also new to the stage is 84 Charing Cross Road, adapted from Helene Hanff's best-selling book by James Roose-Evans and directed by Richard Beecham, starring Stefanie Powers and Clive Francis. This heart-warming tale is based on the touching true story of the remarkable 20 year relationship between a New York writer and a London bookseller that still deeply resonates today.

Sweeping onto Richmond's historic stage to make audiences laugh by the hundreds is Quartet, the charming tale of a group of ageing opera singers by Ronald Harwood.

Cecily (Wendi Peters), Reggie (Jeff Rawle) and Wilfred (Paul Nicholas) reside in a magnificent retirement home in Kent where the rumour circling the halls is that the home is soon to play host to a new star resident.

Jean (Sue Holderness) arrives and old rivalries resurface, secrets are revealed and chaos unfolds, but in true theatrical tradition – the show must go on. The comedy continues with Monogamy, a new, sharp play by Torben Betts, stars Olivier Award-winner Janie Dee as Caroline Mortimer, the nation's favourite TV cook who has it all but must face the reality of what happens when the cameras turn off and the truth comes out.

Opera lovers will rejoice as Ellen Kent brings two stunning operas La Traviata and Madama Butterfly back to Richmond, presented by Opera & Ballet International and starring the international sopranos Alyona Kistenyova and Maria HeeJung Kim, as well as a highly praised chorus and full orchestra.

Sasha Regan brings her production of the All Male Iolanthe by W.S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan to entertain audiences. A topsy-turvy love story between the most unlikely of couples, fairies and members of the House of Lords, Iolanthe is universally regarded as Sullivan's beautiful score.

Audiences will have no short supply of exclusive special events, including Dame Patricia Routledge Facing The Music – A Live in Musical Theatre, An Evening with Paul Gambaccini and Sir Ranulph Finnes – Living Dangerously.

The Rollin' Stoned

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

The Rollin' Stoned have been described by The Times as "the nearest thing to the real article" and they come to the Boom Boom Club in Sutton on Friday night.

The costumes are shamelessly camp, gaudy and fab, the instruments genuinely vintage and the wit irreverent, but the 'tongue in cheek' approach is never at the expense of the music.

This is a band with genuine passion for the music, so enjoy two hours of nostalgia as the Rolling Stoned play the best of 1964-1969 like Jumping Jack Flash, Brown Sugar, Paint

It Black, Not Fade Away, Get Off My Cloud, It's All Over Now and Satisfaction.

FILM CHOICE

ISLE OF DOGS (PG): Writer-director Wes Anderson returns to stop-motion animation for a self-consciously offbeat buddy comedy on two and four legs. Isle Of Dogs reunites the filmmaker with longtime collaborators behind and in front of the camera including cinematographer Tristan Oliver and composer Alexandre Desplat. Anderson employs an episodic structure with pithy chapter headings like The Little Pilot, The Rendezvous and Atari's Lantern to neatly bookmark his visually stunning odyssey of a 12-year-old boy (Koyu Rankin), who intends to be reunited with his shaggy pet. The detail of miniature sets and character figures is remarkable and there are some lovely touches like multiple uses for cotton wool and lice slaloming through dogs' matted fur in skin-crawling close-up. The film is arch, knowing and impeccably conceived but emotionally a tad chilly, reveling in the inventiveness and imagination of the writer-director's unique vision at the expense of collaring our emotions for a satisfying walk.

READY PLAYER ONE (12A): Set in the mid-21st century, Ready Player One is a dystopian big budget fantasy, which imagines a resource-depleted world that relies on virtual reality as an escape from the gloom of the everyday. On more than one occasion, Steven Spielberg's film issues dire warnings about the zombification of entire generations, who believe "meaningful" relationships can be forged online. "Reality is the only thing that's real," proclaims one pivotal character. It's a bitter irony that Spielberg's picture gleefully ignores its own advice to hurtle at breakneck speed into eye-popping digital realms crammed with gaming in-jokes, but offers us no compelling reason to remove the goggles and interface in person. As a visual spectacle, the film is a tour-de-force of technical wizardry. Unfortunately, the fast and furious smacking of gobs doesn't extend to a script adapted from Ernest Cline's celebrated 2011 novel by the author and Zak Penn.

BLOCKERS (15, 102 mins): Forget the sugar and spice and all things nice. The girls in Pitch Perfect screenwriter Kay Cannon's filthy-minded directorial debut are full of sexually suggestive emojis, bold self-expression and a generous smattering of insecurities. They are doyennes of social media, who talk openly about their feelings and have fewer sexual hang-ups than their emotionally bruised parents, whose vigour has been eroded by failed marriages, financial responsibility and the fear of growing old. Blockers engineers a hilarious battle of wits between these two generations during one eventful prom night. Less raunchy and riotous than Girls Trip but aimed at a similar if slightly younger audience, Cannon's potty-mouthed comedy tempers the bittersweet with the saltiness of some outrageous set pieces including a bout of full-frontal roleplay. Naughtiness sexts niceness throughout Brian Kehoe and Jim Kehoe's warm-hearted script, which is punctuated with poignant scenes of self-reflection and parental pride.

MIDNIGHT SUN (12A): A good heart is surprisingly easy to find in Midnight Sun, a gushing terminal illness weepie, which targets the same teenage tear ducts as The Fault In Our Stars. Directed with a heavy hand by Scott Speer, this English language remake of a 2006 Japanese film quickly distils the facts about a recessive condition called Xeroderma Pigmentosum (XP), which is triggered by exposure to sunlight. Consequently, the luminous yet pale-skinned heroine of Speer's film, who suffers from XP, is consigned to her house by day behind special blinds, a distant observer to the ebb and flow of the daily life of hormone-addled peers. Bella Thorne channels the goofy charm of early Sandra Bullock in the central role, replete with nervous nose snorts, while Arnold Schwarzenegger's model son Patrick seizes his first leading role as a sensitive swimming team dreamboat. It's a potentially sickly confection and there are moments of shameless emotional manipulation in Eric Kirsten's script, tethered to the central character's burgeoning talent as a guitar-strumming singer-songwriter. However, there are also sweet and surprisingly touching scenes before the inevitable deluge of saltwater, galvanised by the smouldering screen chemistry of the two attractive leads.

PACIFIC RIM UPRISING (12A): Steven S DeKnight makes an inauspicious feature film directorial debut with a soulless and bombastic sequel, which has been crudely bolted together using spare parts from Transformers and Independence Day: Resurgence. Lorne Balfe's thunderous orchestral score competes with cacophonous sound effects to make us wince in our seats from the opening titles. The discomfort intensifies when characters open their mouths to spew risible exchanges that pass for dialogue. The film's gleaming hardware is impressive: hulking, digitally rendered robots cutting a swathe through the toppling skyscrapers of Tokyo with flame-licked swords, or grappling above and below the cracking ice of a Siberian wilderness. When it comes to the software of a malfunctioning script credited to four writers, Pacific Rim Uprising is in dire need of upgrades. Character development is laughable and pivotal deaths barely register an emotional ripple.

UNSANE (15): Seeing is deceiving in Steven Soderbergh's hallucinogenic mind trip for a traumatised data analyst (Claire Foy), who sees the menacing face of a stalker everywhere she turns. Scripted by Johan Bernstein and James Greer, Unsane is shot entirely on a smartphone and generates sparks of claustrophobia from the restricted screen framing and occasional blurring of images as characters race around dimly lit corridors. Visuals are intentionally murky, reflecting the gloom that descends upon the stricken heroine as she is separated from people she loves and the security of her home environment. In his capacity as director and editor, Soderbergh loosens his usually firm grasp on the film's quickening pulse as boundaries between reality and nightmarish imagination blur with violent consequences. Shaky handheld camerawork has a verte, improvised quality akin to a fly-on-the-wall documentary rather than a studio-financed psychological thriller. Once the script commits itself to revealing whether the terror is only in the central character's muddled head, tension dissipates.

Average asking price of newly-marketed property have jumped 1.5 per cent - or over £4,500 - in the past month, says Rightmove.

The portal says the first time buyers and second-stepper sectors have hit all-time price highs of £189,840 and £272,031 respectively.

Overall, average asking prices also hit new record in four out of 11 regions as the market has been hit by a five per cent dip in supply compared to the same period a year ago.

The 1.5 per cent increase this month is the largest seen at this time of year since 2007, says Rightmove.

However, over the first quarter of 2018 the price of property coming to market is up by three per cent.

This is a stronger performance than the first quarter of 2017 but weaker than the 3.6 per cent rise in 2016 which was inflated by the rush to beat the stamp duty deadline on second homes.

Rightmove housing analyst Mikes Shipside says: "It remains to be seen if this month's eleven-year price rise high for March is a catch-up anomaly after two more subdued price rise months, or an early sign of price pressure building up a real head of steam as we enter the spring market. Either way, sellers need to be mindful of increasingly stretched buyer affordability, and the more they increase prices the more buyers will hit their ceiling on the amount they are able to save for a deposit and borrow for a mortgage.

"There does however still seem to be potential price headroom in parts of the country, especially in some of the regions in the north, and in the more mass-market sectors. However, sooner or later higher prices tend to mean fewer people can afford to move, and that is one of the factors keeping the annual rate of increase subdued at 2.1 per cent."

Skills that add up

AS FAR as securing a top job after graduation goes, accountancy is a great choice. However, when it comes to securing a position at the best firms, applicants need more than just a good degree to stand out.

If it important to have a diverse CV. Employers love nothing better than reading about a passion or hobby that's a bit different. Even if your interests are not particularly quirky, having success in a non-academic arenas such as sport is an asset.

This shows potential employers you have more than one string to your bow. Work experience is also where you can set yourself apart from the pack.

IT skills are a must. Most firms use their own customised software, which new-starts will need to master on a regular basis. Show the breadth of your IT knowledge and how you've swiftly adapted to new systems to gain Brownie points.

Be a team player. The ability to get on with people is vital to forging a successful career as an accountant. Often you'll be required to present information to, so being able to communicate complex stats without flummoxing everyone else in the room is a skill in itself.

Finally, you must be professional. While accountancy students follow a tough schedule, it's still a big leap from student life to full-time professional.

This means appropriate dress and language at work. Graduates who conduct themselves in the most business-like way will be the ones catching the eyes of the top recruiters.

BACKGROUND: The Fiat 500 is the car that built its brand and since this modern era version was first launched in 2007, the Italian brand has never stopped trying to improve it. The most recent changes concern media connectivity. Specifically, the addition of a sophisticated 'Uconnect' infotainment system. This set-up's now been enhanced with 'Apple CarPlay' / 'Android Auto' phone connectivity and to highlight the fact, Fiat has introduced this special 'Mirror' edition model based around hatch and convertible versions using the volume 1.2-litre petrol engine.

EXPERIENCE: And on the move? Well the Italian brand enhanced refinement and improved the braking performance of this model with a package of changes introduced in 2015 but in truth, the dynamic feel of this car won't be a very important consideration for most potential buyers. They'll be more interested in the super-tight 9.3m turning circle and the way you can twirl this car into the tightest parking space thanks to the super-light 'City' steering feature. These people will often be urban-based - hence the relatively high take-up for the clutchless 'Dualogic' transmission option. And over 80% of them tend to opt for the powerplant used with this 'Mirror' edition model, the 69bhp 1.2-litre petrol unit. Potential owners will like the light steering, with its 'city' option that lightens it even further so that you can twirl the car into the tightest space. They also might want to test out the super-tight 9.3m turning circle. It helps enormously here that the high driving position and big windows make this car so easy to see out of and place on the road. It's urban-friendly through and through you see.

DESIGN: The Fiat 500 Mirror is available in hatchback and convertible guises with a choice of five exterior colours, including Electronica Blue. This special edition aims to enhance its classic look with chrome finished door mirror covers, a brushed aluminium "Mirror" badge on the B pillar and 16-inch wheels. Otherwise, this is just like any other Fiat 500, which means that it's just 3.5m long, 1.6m wide and 1.5m high, enabling it to fit into spaces that even a MINI would have to avoid. If you choose the 500C variant rather than the fixed-top model, you get what amounts to a full-length canvas sunroof which electrically retracts into a concertinaed bundle just above the boot. Inside, delicious details are everywhere, the coloured fascia panels featuring iconic '500' badging and colour-matched against the bodywork. This 'Mirror' model gets exclusive black upholstery and white interior detailing. Plus a large 7-inch 'Uconnect LIVE' infotainment display screen mounted high on the dashboard, right in your line of sight. As for practicalities, well there's obviously not much room on the rear seat but in the boot, the 185-litre space is no smaller than an ordinary mainstream citycar like Toyota's Aygo would give you.

MARKET AND MODEL: Pricing for this 500 Mirror model is pitched at £13,965 for the 3-door fixed-top hatch version. That's about £2,300 more than you'd pay for this car in its cheapest base-spec 'Pop' guise when fitted with the 1.2-litre 69bhp petrol engine that features in this special edition. There's a significant £2,600 model-for-model premium if you want the '500C' version with its electric fabric folding roof. Standard equipment includes 16-inch alloy wheels, various visual embellishments, a speed limiter and integrated controls on the leather steering wheel. The main feature that 500 'Mirror' buyers will want though, is this car's sophisticated 'Uconnect' 7-inch HD LIVE touchscreen which comes with Bluetooth, USB and AUX-IN ports and Apple CarPlay or Android Auto phone connectivity. The introduction of Apple CarPlay and Android Auto means that users can access the main applications of their smartphones directly on the 7-inch screen of the 'Uconnect' system. Apple CarPlay enables iPhone users to access Apple Maps, Apple Music, messages, phone and more with Siri or the 'Uconnect' touchscreen, while Android Auto integration also allows drivers to manage the compatible content and features on their device directly from the integrated touch screen or by using the system's vocal commands.

The junior athletes from Epsom & Ewell Harriers started the summer season in style with lots of personal best performances at the South London open athletics meeting in Tooting, writes Stuart Flack.

There was a record breaking performance by Anna Pickup who stormed around 200m in 27.61 secs to break the under 13 club record and place 5th in the UK rankings. Ellie Taylor won the u15 75m hurdles in 12.18 secs and Amy Catcheside took 2nd in the u17 80m Hurdles in 15.7 secs.

The club took a clean sweep in the girls 800m. Lauren Flack dominated the race, pulling clear on the second lap to record a big personal best of 2 mins 24.29.

She was followed home by Sophie Lomas who was 1st u15 in 2 mins 30.60 and Sophie Osborne who was 1st u13 in 2 mins 34.70.

In the boys race, Callum Morley had a great debut to finish 2nd in 2 mins 11.80 and he was closely followed by Alex Gurteen who finished 3rd in 2 mins 12.79.

Murphy on target

Epsom slipped to their third defeat in the last 10 League matches on Saturday against Bedfont Sports, writes George Holland.

After the early exchanges, Epsom keeper Conor Young's clearance was closed down easily on eight minutes to put the Salts under pressure. The resulting shot flew over the bar.

However, only five minutes later Reisse Griffin was put under pressure tangling with a forward, and his clumsy tackle saw a Jack Mills penalty send Young the wrong way to give Sports a 1-0 lead.

Epsom equalised on 24 minutes when a corner came through a crowded area for Ashley Thompson to rifle home off the bar, into the roof of the net from six yards out. Sports regained the lead soon afterwards when a low cross from the left wing saw Salts Full Back Endrit Dobras slide in and put the ball in the corner of the net, for an own goal.

On 39 minutes Epsom's defence was all at sea, and Jason Nwachukwu nipped past everyone to easily beat Conor Young for 1-3 to Sports. Jason was with Epsom last season.

Scott Murphy brought Epsom back into it a minute later with a superbly taken free kick. Just before half-time, Liam Roberts ran on to a cross from the right, but his header went just wide. So we reached the break 2-3 down.

With Epsom pushing for an equaliser, Murphy had another free kick to the right edge of the area in injury time. But he could not match his earlier effort.

However, at the end of injury time, Sports scored their fourth. Epsom keeper Young dived on the ball outside his area. In came Matt Riggs to easily beat him, and shoot into the empty net from 30 yards to complete the scoring at 4-2.

The Salts host Colliers Wood on Good Friday at High Road, Chipstead. Kick-off at 11.30am. Banstead then visit on Easter Monday (11.30am). Entry £1 for children.

Sutton United boss Paul Doswell hailed Ross Stearn's stunning strike "a goal of the season contender" as the U's beat Chester 3-2 last Saturday.

First-half goals from Harry Beautyman and Byron Harrison gave Sutton a commanding 2-0 lead before James Akintunde reduced the arrears on the hour mark.

But Stearn's moment of magic in the 79th minute proved the game's decisive moment.

The winger looked up before curling a pinpoint 25-yard shot into the top corner leaving Chester's on-loan Liverpool goalkeeper Andy Firth grasping at thin air.

A late penalty from Harry White gave the visitors hope, but the U's held on to claim the three points which put them back on top of the Vanarama National League, albeit for a few days.

Stearn unexpectedly entered the fray as a 23rd-minute substitute for Beautyman who suffered a broken nose.

His spectacular goal was his first for Sutton since returning to the club in November after a year with Eastleigh and led to deserving praise from his manager.

"It was a great goal from Stearny," said Doswell.

"It reminded me very much of his last time here. That's what he brings to you. He's got that quality, especially on the left-hand side coming across.

"He's got his sharpness back now. He's had that loan spell [at Bath City] and he's got over that injury and he's desperate to get his teeth into it and that will do him the world of good."

Beautyman's opening goal in the 13th minute was also his first for the U's since returning to Gander Green Lane from Stevenage back in January.

Sutton added a second right on half-time when Chester's midfielder Tom Crawford's attempted clearance hit Harrison on the chest and rebounded into the net.

The Sutton striker's knack for being in the right place at the right time proved that it doesn't matter how they go in, a goal is a goal.

And, although the overall performance may have lacked finesse, Doswell was keen to point out, a win is a win.

"We'll take the win," he said. "We weren't at our best today but it doesn't matter if you're at your best or not anymore, with seven games to go.

"One of the good things about this team is there's no nervousness about our position.

"We probably haven't been at our best the past three or four weeks but it doesn't matter now, performances are somewhat irrelevant, it's all about the result, whether you get them by hook or by crook."

Macclesfield Town scored a last minute goal to beat Gateshead 1-0 on Tuesday and dislodge Sutton from top spot going into a busy Easter weekend of National League fixtures.

The U's visit Maidenhead United this Friday (March 30, 3pm) before hosting FA Trophy finalists Bromley on Bank Holiday Monday (April 2, 3pm) in a match being screened live on BT Sport.

A's suffer heavy loss

Kofi Quartey scored with a well taken lob from outside the area as Banstead Athletic beat Camberley Town 1-0, writes Bob Lockyer.

The A's played the last hour of that recent away match with just ten men after Leonel Medrado was shown a straight red card. The Krooners were on a run of 24 matches unbeaten and fifth in the table, so it was a fine win for Banstead lying third from bottom.

However, they were brought down to earth last Saturday away against high flying Westfield. It didn't help that the A's started with just eleven players on the team sheet due to injuries and absentees for other reasons.

Harry Wise pulled a hamstring after twenty minutes, but insisted he would carry on in considerable pain.

With no substitutes on the bench to call on it would have meant Athletic playing with just ten men. Effectively that was what they were doing anyway.

At that time Banstead were 0-1 but got back level after a well taken goal from Anson Cousins ten minutes before the break. Westfield piled on the pressure and goals in a 7-1 win.

Harry Wise had to eventually come off with fifteen minutes of the match to go.
